COUNTY, STATE AND CITY TO DIVIDE COST

Auditor Says County Should Not Pay For Work—Estimate Cost $6 Foot.

Chances of S. Court-st between the Norfolk and Western railway and the city corporation line being paved this summer were given a brighter aspect this week when the county commissioners met and voted to carry out the improvements.

The commissioners, together with the finance committee of city council and H. G. Metcalf, representing the state highway department, decided on the ways and means for carrying out the project and plans have gone forth for letting of a bid in time to have the work completed this summer.

COSTS $6 A FOOT

The commissioners plan to assess property owners approximately $6 per running foot of pavement. The street, when paved will have a width of 56 feet, 20 feet of which the state will pay, 10 feet of which the county will pay, and the remaining 26 feet, 13 feet on each side of the street, will be assessed the city and property owners.

According to the commissioners, property owners will be given 10 years to pay their share, with interest at approximately 5 per cent. The ordinary 50 foot lot will cost approximately $300.

But while these plans are going through, County Auditor Bryce Briggs states that the county does not have to issue the bonds for the county's share, due to the fact, he says, that the city council has to do with the governing of the city and that the county should not be assessed for city paving.

However, the commissioners have ordered that bonds be issued.

BURNS TO BID

It is expected that A. W. Burns Construction Co., of Columbus, paving the Scioto Trail between the corporation and Ross-co line will enter a bid for the work and, according to an announcement, if he is successful, will begin paving this street as soon as the Scioto Trail is completed.

At the present time this short distance is the only part of the highway between Chillicothe and Columbus that is not paved.

GRUNDY, VARE ORGANIZATION LOSES FIGHT

Results Show Davis Has Lead of 175,000 Over Senatorial Opponent.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
PHILADELPHIA, May 21—Pennsylvania's super-hectic primary showed, the following results: Secretary of Labor Parnes J. Davis defeated Senator Joseph R. Grundy for the Republican Senatorial nomination by a margin estimated between 150,000 and 175,000 votes.

PINCHOT CLOSE

Gifford Pinchot, the veteran progressive, apparently has won the Republican gubernatorial nomination from Francis Shunk Brown, the Vare organization candidate, by a narrow margin. The contest is close and it may take the official count to determine the winner.

The "wringing wet" ticket of Thomas W. Phillips for governor and Professor Francis H. Bohlen for senator polled a heavy vote throughout the state, but ran third. Senator Grundy, with characteristic grimness, retired early this morning, refusing to concede the victory to his cabinet opponent, but the verdict was written in such figures that a concession was hardly necessary.

PITTSBURGH HELPS

Grundy ran far behind Davis in the two great organization strongholds of the state, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and although he made up some ground in the other 65 counties it was impossible to overcome the tidal wave of votes rolled up by the city machine.

The Pinchot-Brown race was a see-saw affair throughout the night, but this morning the tall forester was leading Brown by some 7,000 votes. In Allegheny county (Pittsburgh) and the territory yet to be heard from, in the middle counties, was considered favorable to his cause.

The strength of Pinchot and the weakness of Grundy were the outstanding features of the results to the politicians.

PHILADELPHIA AIDS VARE

Slaughtered in Philadelphia, the stronghold of the Vare machine, against which he campaigned so assiduously, Pinchot ran a strong and surprising race elsewhere in the state. This morning his managers were claiming that on the final returns he will be shown to have carried every one of Pennsylvania's 67 counties. He received only 53,000 votes in Philadelphia in a total vote of approximately 400,000.

Grundy fared only slightly better than Pinchot, his informal ticket-mate, in Philadelphia, and failed to gain the large support in Allegheny (Pittsburgh) that enabled Pinchot to make a race of it. With unofficial and incomplete returns from most of the counties, it is expected that Grundy will have carried a score of counties in the final showdown, but some of them were counties that do not have as many votes as some of Philadelphia's populous divisions.

The wet showing, on the whole, was pronounced today by the wet managers to be fairly satisfactory.

MODERN 'JOAN OF ARC' HELD; SALT RAID ON

Many Injured, Scores Arrested In Bloody Battle at Dharasana—Many Watch.

BOMBAY, May 21—With the Nationalist assault upon British sovereignty in India rapidly reaching its climax, the country seethed with unrest today as plans went forward for new raids upon the government salt depot at Dharasana, where Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, the self-styled "modern Joan of Arc" and scores of others were arrested in a bloody clash between Independents and police earlier in the day.

HAVE NEW LEADER

Latest reports from Dharasana, now the focal point of the Nationalist "passive rebellion," stated that V. J. Patel, Secretary of the Indian Nationalist Congress, had arrived there to carry forward the banner of Independence which fell from Mrs. Naidu's hands when she was taken into custody.

The "passive resistance" of the Nationalists changed suddenly today into guerrilla warfare. More than 1,500 raiders, led by the courageous woman, attacked the salt depot, first trying to uproot the electrified barbed-wire entanglements which had been erected and then attempting to break through the lines of police and troops to reach the salt-pans.

USES NO WEAPONS

Time after time groups of raiders were beaten back by the police, who in order to avoid bloodshed, used no weapons save their bamboo batons. Many of the raiders were severely cut and bruised, however, at least twenty of them requiring hospital treatment.

The battle, one of the most prolonged and serious since Mahatma Gandhi launched his "passive resistance" campaign weeks ago, lasted almost two hours. When the raiders finally were repelled, scores had been taken into custody, including Mrs. Naidu and Mami Lal Gandhi, grandson of the Mahatma.

It was estimated that 100 of the raiders were injured in the conflict. Seeing the futility of a massed raid against the strongly entrenched police, the Independents split up into groups of twenty or thirty, making sudden dashes from under cover for the salt pans, and while the gendarmes were battling to repel one batch, another dashed out to carry on the work.

THOUSANDS WATCH

As the raid had been widely advertised beforehand, thousands of spectators were massed at the depot. Most of them alternated between encouraging the raiders and shouting epithets at the police.

Although beaten back after more than ninety minutes of fighting, the Nationalists remained undaunted, and awaited only the arrival of a new leader before continuing the onslaught. Patel arrived on the scene a short while after, and preparations begun for a new attack.

PEN FIRE COST IS $254,050

Damage Is Only $35,000, Troops Cost $138,200—Need Appropriations.

COLUMBUS, O., May 21—While conditions reached a period of normalcy at the Ohio State Penitentiary here, members of the state control board today announced that though only $35,000 damage resulted when the great fire hit the prison April 22, the conflagration which cost the lives of 320 convicts also has cost the state of Ohio $254,050.

The largest single item on the report was $138,200 for the payment of the Ohio National Guard troops which have kept a continual vigil at the prison since the holocaust. At one time more than 1,000 soldiers were stationed there, but less than 100 men are on actual duty today.

$100,000 appropriation was necessary for rehabilitation of the penitentiary. The G and H cell-block was damaged by the fire and the "fire-trap" wooden roof was entirely razed. Damage also resulted in the "White City" cell-block when rioting occurred.

Burial of the 320 convicts who perished in the fire, and of two others who were shot to death by guardsmen when a machine gun discharged accidentally, cost the state $15,850.

COUNTY, STATE AND CITY TO DIVIDE COST

Auditor Says County Should Not Pay For Work—Estimate Cost $6 Foot.

Chances of S. Court-st between the Norfolk and Western railway and the city corporation line being paved this summer were given a brighter aspect this week when the county commissioners met and voted to carry out the improvements. The commissioners, together with the finance committee of city council and H. G. COSTS $6 A FOOT
The commissioners plan to assess property owners approximately $6 per running foot of pavement. The street, when paved will have a width of 56 feet, 20 feet of which the state will pay, 10 feet of which the county will pay, and the remaining 26 feet, 13 feet on each side of the street, will be assessed the city and property owners.

But while these plans are going through, County Auditor Bryce Briggs states that the county does not have to issue the bonds for the county's share, due to the fact, he says, that the city council has to do with the governing of the city and that the county should not be assessed for city paving.

Troops Cost $138,200—
Need Appropriations.

COLUMBUS, O., May 21—While conditions reached a period of normalcy at the Ohio State Penitentiary here, members of the state control board today announced that though only $35,000 damage resulted when the great fire hit the prison April 22, the conflagration which cost the lives of 320 convicts also has cost the state of Ohio $254,050.

The largest single item on the report was $138,200 for the payment of the Ohio National Guard troops which have kept a continual vigil at the prison since the holocaust. At one time more than 1,000 soldiers were stationed there, but less than 100 men are on actual duty today.

$100,000 appropriation was necessary for rehabilitation of the penitentiary. The G and H cell block was damaged by the fire and the "fire-trap" wooden roof was entirely razed. Damage also resulted in the "White City" cell block when rioting occurred.

Burial of the 320 convicts who perished in the fire, and of two others who were shot to death by guardsmen when a machine gun discharged accidentally, cost the state $15,850.

EVOLUTION OF COUNTIES

Ohio was the first state carved out of what was known as the Northwest Territory, whose government was provided for by the Ordinance of 1787. This ordinance was the work of the Continental Congress then in session at Philadelphia.

During the Revolution, George Rogers Clarke with a band of hardy western Virginians and Kentuckians invaded the Province of Quebec which extended to the Ohio river, and through his quick moves and inimitable bravery conquered this rich territory from the British.

The Continental Congress appointed Arthur St. Clair as governor of this territory and through his actions the first counties were established.

Counties were organized for the purpose of establishing court districts. The ordinance of 1787 prescribes the manner in which the counties were formed in these words: "for the execution of process, civil and criminal, the governor shall make, proper divisions thereof; and he shall proceed from time to time to lay out parts of the districts, subject, however, to such alterations as may thereafter be made by the legislature."

So Governor St. Clair's first act in carrying out this provision was the erection of Washington county, with Marietta, the first settlement in Ohio, as the county seat. This county embraced almost half of the state of Ohio. All eastern Ohio, west to the Cuyahoga river, then down to the Tuscarawas, thence across westward to the headwaters of the Scioto, and down to the Ohio river.

Out of the western part of the state, Hamilton county was formed in 1792, and extended to the Scioto on the east with Cincinnati as its county seat. Originally, then, Pickaway county was a part of these two counties, Washington on the east and Hamilton on the west.

Chillicothe, being a growing for county government, separate from these, and a part of both or center of population, soon asked iginal counties was cut off for this purpose and named Ross. Its original boundaries coincided with its present southern, eastern and western limits, but extended north to the headwaters of the Scioto. (Notice that these original counties had northern boundaries rather indefinite, as that was Indian country and was unsafe to send surveyors into it.

In the latter part of 1800 the

College Co-ed Gliding Star

O. COMMISSION MAKES RULE

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has just ruled, in a case brought from Trumbull-co, that an electric power company, which provides a rural line extension by contract with a limited number of subscribers who agree to pay the cost of the line construction, must furnish the service to other applicants after the line is installed, whether or not they agree to pay a portion of the construction costs.

E. J. Bath, director of the Ohio Farm Bureau legislative advised the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

The commission, in arriving at its ruling, declared such line extension to be the property of the power company and to be maintained by it, and therefore subject to the law which provides that the utility must render service to anyone requesting it, subject to its filed rate schedules and charges for every kind of service it furnishes.

This decision is important because in most cases new subscribers for current who have heretofore been forced to pay a share of the initial line construction cost, are now relieved of that expense.

It is possible that the question of repayment under contracts will be threshed out in the local courts, although it may be solved by the joint committees of the utilities and farm crops.

Automobile drivers, feeling the effects of hard times, are spending less money for gasoline and are not operating their machines as much as is customary for this time of the year, according to a letter from the insurance company to H. J. Briggs, Service Manager of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

All insurance companies are noting this with accident claims dropping lower than the average for April and May, the report continues. Even though there are one-third as many Farm Bureau insurance policies in effect this month than there were last year at this time, the accidents reported are lower proportionately.

Farmers are driving less, mainly because of the fine weather that has been prevalent, giving them more time to spend working in the fields. At the same time the city drivers are not using their machines as much, and when farmers do drive themselves there is a lessened traffic hazard to face, resulting in fewer accidents.

Denmark Lures Tourist

Denmark, "The Land of the Sea," is one of the smallest of the northern kingdoms of Europe, but its geographical position, its extensive coast line—it is almost surrounded by water—its invigorating climate, and its ancient historical traditions coupled with a progressive modernity, make it one of the most attractive of all destinations of the tourist in Europe.

His Occupation Cope

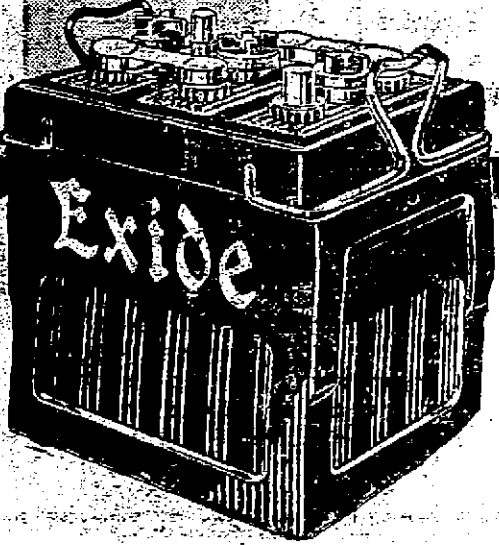

The chimneyman is no more. He was the chorister of the old "pocket ship." He sang the lines of the chimneys and the crew joined in the chorus, performing their tasks as they sang. There were pulling songs, wildcat songs, settling and furling sails, pumping the ship out. Some were intended to beguile the men while getting up the anchor.

Makes Gas Innocuous

It was stated recently that Dr. J. C. W. Frazer of Johns Hopkins university has announced the discovery of a catalyst that will convert carbon monoxide gas passing over it to harmless carbon dioxide. The efficiency of this catalyst is said to have been demonstrated under a variety of driving conditions and in confined spaces, the catalyst being resistant to closed garages.

In February of 1803, by act of Congress, Ohio was recognized as a sovereign state, and the organization of counties came under the state constitution, and the work was done by the General Assembly.

April 30, 1803, about 500 square miles of Ross county was carved out and named Franklin county.

The territory along the Scioto began to fill up with settlers, attracted by the rich woodlands and fertile plains.

The Indians had left for the north, and the lands west of the river could be had for the taking, by the Virginia soldiers of the Revolution. On the east side the Pennsylvanians pushed in, and the region around Circleville having a comparatively large population, they asked for recognition in the matter of county government.

The General Assembly at that time was in session at the capital at Chillicothe. On January 12, 1810, an act was passed creating a new county to be called Pickaway. (It was intended to be spelled Piqua, but members introducing the bill it seems knew his p's but not his q's, hence the present spelling).

Part of Ross county extending from the present south boundary of Pickaway to the north boundaries of Monroe and Jackson townships west of the Scioto, and to the north line of Washington and Circleville townships, east of the Scioto was taken. The rest of the northern part was taken from Franklin county and the 36 square miles of Salt Creek township was cut from Fairfield county.

The Act, creating this county went into effect March 1, 1810, making it now 120 years old. The signatures on this act are, Edward Tiffin, speaker of the house, and Duncan McArthur, president of the senate. The population at that time was 7,124 about the present population of Circleville. The area is 490 square miles. The townships number 15 and have had the same evolutionary history as that of the counties.

GROWTH OF TREES

Trees do not grow throughout the whole summer. By the last of May the full growth has taken place, and the rest of the season is taken up in turning the soft tissue into woody fiber. About 40 days in spring and early summer is consumed in making the total growth. Some trees start earlier than others, for instance the Buckeyes have now finished their growth for this year. So have most of the hard maples. As I write a young European maple along our street has put out about 18 inches of new branches and the terminal, but for next year's growth is already formed.

EVERGREENS IN OHIO

Three or possibly four species of pines are native to Ohio. In the sandstone regions like those of Hocking and Fairfield counties are found the Pitch pine and the Jersey Spruce pine. While in Scioto and Adams counties is found the Short-leaf pine. It is especially abundant in the Roosevelt Game Preserve in Scioto county. The White pine, the finest and most useful of all the evergreens is found in limited quantities only in the extreme north east corner of the state.

The Hemlock grows only in sand stone regions of eastern Ohio. It grows in an acid soil and will not succeed well in our limestone soil. On a recent trip through southern Ohio I observed that there were forests of almost pure stands of the Red Cedar. This region is of limestone formation and this tree succeeds well here.

There are many introduced species of evergreens growing in Ohio, some from Europe, some from the far western part of the United States.

The Norway Spruce has been planted extensively for ornamental purposes and in some places for Christmas trees. This is the principal tree in the Schwarzwald or Black Forest of Germany.

The Scotch Pine is now being planted extensively in the state forests of Ohio. I saw four fine specimens of these trees around the grave of General Braddock in Pennsylvania. These trees had been brought from Scotland in 1813 and planted there.

From the far west comes the Colorado Blue Spruce and for its steel blue foliage and graceful shape.

The White pine, the finest and most useful of all the evergreens is found in limited quantities only in the extreme north east corner of the state.

The Hemlock grows only in sand stone regions of eastern Ohio. It loves an acid soil and will not succeed well in our limestone soil. On a recent trip through southern Ohio I observed that there were forests of almost pure stands of the Red Cedar. This region is of limestone formation and this tree succeeds well here.

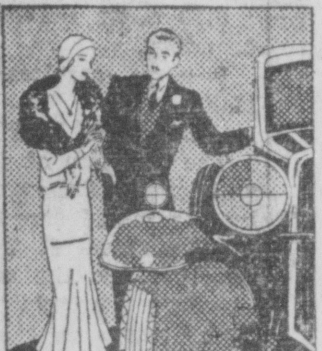

There are many introduced species of evergreens growing in Ohio, some from Europe, some from the far western part of the United States.

The Norway Spruce has been planted extensively for ornamental purposes and in some places for Christmas trees. This is the principal tree in the Schwarg-wald or Black Forest of Germany.

The Scotch Pine is now being planted extensively in the state forests of Ohio. I saw four fine specimens of these tree around the grave of General Braddock in Pennsylvania. These trees had been brought from Scotland in 1813 and planted there.

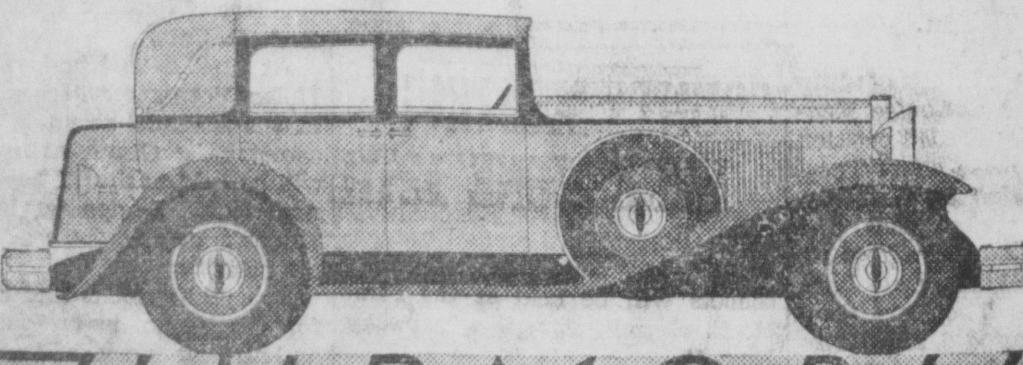

From the far west comes the Colorado Blue Spruce and for its steel blue foliage and graceful shape.

Denmark, "The Land of the Sea," is one of the smallest of the northern kingdoms of Europe, but its geographical position, its extensive coast line—it is almost surrounded by water—its invigorating climate, and its ancient historical traditions coupled with a progressive modernity, make it one of the most attractive of all destinations of the tourist in Europe.

APRIL DEATHS ON INCREASE

Industrial Fatalities This Year Are 15 More Than Listed In 1929.

Industrial employment in Ohio was productive of 10,111 accidents in April and of this number 105 resulted fatally, which is 15 more fatalities than the record for April, 1929. However, there were 3,797 fewer non-fatal accidents than in April of the preceding year. The time loss due to April accidents was 936,916 days, which can be conservatively estimated as the equivalent of over $2,250,000 in wages.

Pickaway-co had 27 accidents, of which none resulted fatally, none caused permanent partial disability, seven resulted in a time loss of seven days or more, three seven days or less and 17 medical cases causing no loss of time. This is compared with 14 accidents, and no fatalities in March.

"Reduced to dollars," says Supt. Thomas P. Kearns of the Division of Safety and Hygiene, which issues the statistics, "the 162-day time loss as the result of April accident to industrial workers in Pickaway county costs these workers $405.00, based on a conservatively low average of $2.50 per day."

"Fifty-nine of the 105 fatalities in the month," says Kearns, "are charged to five of the twenty-seven industrial groups, these being construction, metal goods, mining, commercial and public employees. Fifteen of them occurred in mining, 13 in commercial employment, 12 in metal goods manufacture, 10 among public employees and 9 in the two branches of construction. It will be noted that commercial employment had one more fatality than metal goods, considered the most prolific source of industrial accidents in the state, despite the fact that the former group had on about fifty per cent as many accidents as the metal goods industry. Public employees had almost as bad a fatality record as mining, with 10 fatalities out of 454 mishaps, while mine employees had 15 fatalities among 520 accidents."

Based upon the generally accepted theory that the direct cost of industrial accidents is four times that the direct cost, the division estimates that industrial mishaps cost Ohio employers and workers more than one hundred million dollars in 1929, or a per capita of approximately $14.70 on an estimated population of over 6,800,000, a staggering example of economic waste.

U. S. STRENGTHENS CALIFORNIA FORT

MONTREY, CAL.— More than $100,000 will be spent by the Government during the next year for improvements at the Presidio of Monterey, it has been announced by Colonel Robert Fitch, the commandant.

Army officers stationed here received with satisfaction the news that $25,000 is to be spent on the extension of natural gas mains to the garrison so that wood and coal stoves and open fireplaces, now used for cooking, may be discarded for modern equipment.

Barracks are to be extended, Colonel Fitch said, and improvements are to be made in the site of the Citizens Military Training Camp.

The Presidio of Monterey, which has been a military post since 1770, comprises 15,000 acres, and is the largest military field in America.

THINK SEVEN SKIPPED PEN

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—That seven prisoners escaped from Ohio State Penitentiary during the fire catastrophe of April 21, was evinced by a careful and comprehensive count of convicts which was completed by prison officials today.

Authorities know how many inmates were within the walls at the time the fire broke out; they know that 320 men perished in the flames and smoke; that two others were accidentally shot to death later. They also exactly know how many men have been transferred to other prison institutions since the April 21 tragedy, how many new prisoners have been received, etc.

While they are uncertain of names, due to false information which has been given them by convicts, they are positive of numbers, and have learned that six men, besides Michael Dorn, are unaccounted for.

Disguised as a hospital interne, Dorn unobtrusively walked out of the main penitentiary gates during the confusion which accompanied the conflagration. He was recaptured, however, a few days later, in Cleveland, leaving six convicts still "at large."

When England Banned Jews
There were no Jews legally residing in England for 365 years, from A. D. 1285 to 1650; the ban against them being lifted in the latter year by Oliver Cromwell.

Great East Indian Festival
Kumbha-Mela is the mighty religious festival which occurs once every 14 years in India. It is then that some 17,000,000 people come to bath at the junction of the three great rivers, Ganges, Jumna and the underground Saraswati.

Range-Finders at Sea
Range-finders similar to those in warships are now being installed on passenger liners. By their aid the distance of objects within a range of 25,000 yards can be determined with a degree of accuracy sufficient for practical purposes. Thus the distance of an object six miles away can be determined within 600 feet.

COMPETITION BLAST CAUSE

CHICAGO, May 21.—Raiding competition was blamed by police following the explosion of a dynamite bomb in the entrance of the K. and W. restaurant here.

The blast, which did damage estimated at $500, smashed windows in the restaurant and in several neighborhood buildings. In examining the ruins the police claim to have discovered a quantity of beer and wine.

THE KING'S CANARY SPEAKS

John Masefield, England's new "King's Canary" as the British call him, says he is writing a new book which is mostly prose, but interspersed with poetry. That is after the manner of some of Kipling's later work. He expects to sing more or less in his new job, but doesn't seem to take it so seriously as most of his predecessors.

His book is a romance of the sea, based on the history of a famous old sailing ship. And speaking of that sort of literature, he observes:

"Romantic stories are necessary in our days. The new generation of writers is inevitably under the influence of our times. Our generation is seeing the most wonderful inventions in the history of mankind. The radio, airplanes and motor cars naturally are influencing young people, who lead a much speedier life than we did 30 years ago. They have no time to read long books in which the characters and psychology of the heroes are closely analyzed."

"Everything goes faster nowadays, and naturally the influence of the mechanical age is felt by young authors. But this will wear out, because basically human nature does not change much."

Yes, we'll tire of action and turn contemplative again, no doubt. But there isn't much sign of that yet.

CITY VACATIONS

The Board of Trade has decided to advertise New York City widely as a summer resort. The emphasis will no doubt be placed on pleasant sea beaches, boating facilities, fine theatres, museums and parks, with no mention of hot pavements, crowded subways and noise.

Other cities, particularly those with bathing beaches, fine parks and boulevards, have been showing a live interest in attracting summer-tourists. It really isn't such a laughable procedure, either. There should be all sorts of vacations to suit all sorts of people and all sorts of recreational needs. For many persons, kept pretty close to routine work during the rest of the year and with little opportunity for travel, a trip to a new and strange city would be a stimulating and thrilling adventure, even without the outdoor features. Many a mother would find two weeks in a big city hotel, with plenty of service and free time for sightseeing a pleasant experience. And there would still be the farms and ranches and mountains and north woods for those other vacationers who need closer contact with nature for their physical and spiritual refreshment.

FRENCH TOURIST BUSINESS

"Tourism," as the French quaintly call it, intrigues us more and more. France is making a business of it. The government itself has gone into the game, with a High Commissioner of Tourism in charge. And it certainly seems to offer a bargain to the foreign tourist, especially from America.

For $100 the traveler is given an inclusive ticket entitling him to a 15-day vacation. It covers transportation all over France by rail, road and motor bus, with three meals a day, including wine.

This latter feature is expected to appeal to thirsty Americans. But wet or dry it's all the same to the French. There's no rebate if the tourist abstains from the wine. He is permitted, however, as a special favor, to drink mineral water if he prefers.

Nothing could show more clearly the extent to which vacation tourism is becoming an industry in many lands. Last year France lost 25 percent of her tourist business. The present plan is counted on to win it back, attracting at least 100,000 more tourists and adding many millions to her revenue.

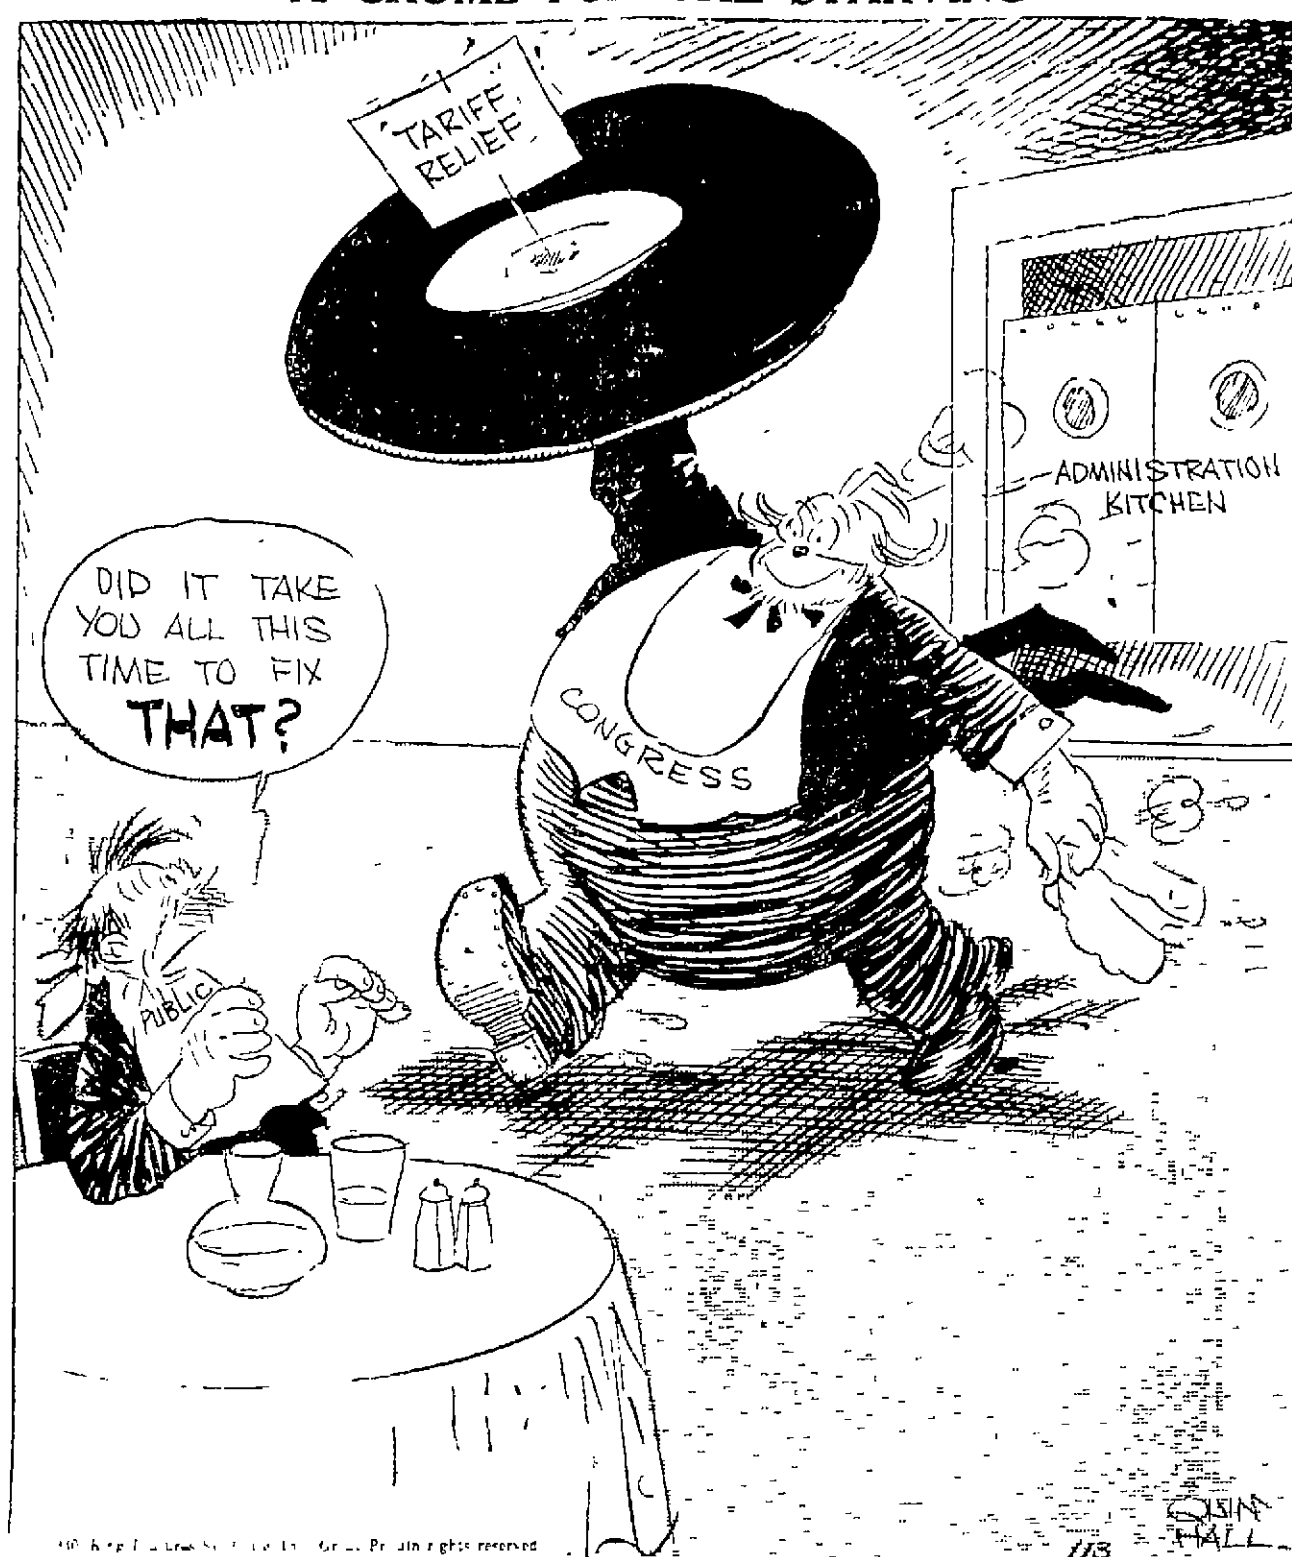

Viewed internationally this tourism to ask what's wrong, whether we do nearly all the wrong and spending. But our turn will come some day. We shall have a Secretary of Tourism in the President's cabinet, with profitable visitors coming by the hundred thousands.

SAVE BASEBALL!

Mass production in hits and runs is threatening the national game of baseball. The public is beginning to ask what's wrong with weathering a hot day in deep center, a weak line, a perfect steal of second base, a lightning, flawless double play, a home run which even the people on the tenement house roofs can see and yell their heads off about.

This may not be so grave a matter as some other national problems, but it is having its bad influence on American life and recreation. Something must be done!

A CRUMB FOR THE STARVING

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

It took her only a few minutes to drive home, and there she looked into the bedroom upon Ken slumbering peacefully in his bed.

"All my excitement for nothing," she told herself. "Maybe I'll learn some day. But it was worth everything I guess—worth what I know now. What I'm going to do."

For her plan was complete; she had made up her mind about Puss. Everything was clear when she awakened at Stonywall.

Of course it might fail just as the cheap little trick which worried Ken of Fiji might have failed. But she did not believe this. She believed that down in his heart, Ken loved her as much as he had loved her on their wedding day.

Anyway she must go through with this, take the chance for the sake of what it might bring. In the afternoon she went to see Nory, told him what she wished to have done. And if he suspected the reason he gave no sign.

"I'll see Wade, right away," he said. "He'll be delighted with the publicity—you thought of that, didn't you? Shouldn't wonder if this would put you over as a writer. If that's what you want to be."

"I don't, Nory. That is, I didn't. Now—well, I don't know—"

His eyes dreamed at her and she looked away. Sometimes she fancied there was more than friendship in Nory's eyes when they rested on her.

Within the week Eve had invited the tribe to a dinner party at the Pen and Brush Club. Engraved invitations, this time, and word passed around that it would be formal. Yet not even Ken was able to find out more than this.

"Better send your clothes to be pressed and buy a new tie, dear. You've only got one and it's a strain."

"But gosh, Eve, why the condescension and herring? You're getting 'em' high hat and mysterious—come to me."

"The mystery will be cleared all right. I phoned Puss and she expects you to fetch her. . . And I've got a new gown coming from La Fleur."

And then it was the night of the party.

Nory called for Eve looking very "all," very whimsical in his black and white. He brought a lot of white orchids which she pinned to the girdle of the La Fleur creation, an artfully artless splash of palest green which put color into her soft ruff of hair and turned her eyes to hazel.

"How thoughtful of you, Nory," she murmured.

"I've seen you, little thoroughbred. Wade is driving up. . . and he wouldn't miss tonight for a party."

Eve frowned thoughtfully. "It doesn't want Ken embarrassed, Nory."

"Ken isn't fragile, my dear. Matter of fact, I think Wade would like to see the young man's bumptiousness jolted. Anyway he gave the story to the afternoon papers; it'll be on the street by now. And a couple of news writers—man from the Planet and a woman from the Star—are coming up on Wade's invitation. Better have your story ready. Ho, hum—looks like the start of a big night."

"Not too big, I hope," she murmured. "They get out of hand— all sorts of things—when they're too big—"

The Pen and Brush Club had been transformed from a rather bare, rather shabby old building to a place of enchantment, banked with flowers and softly lighted. The table had been laid in the ball room and the tribe, all carefully garbed and groomed for the occasion, gathered about looking a little uncertain and watchful. Only Barton Wade at Eve's right and Nory at her left and the two reporters were wholly at ease. Even Ken, beyond asters and peonies at the foot of the table returned Eve's smile doubtfully. He had not known that Wade was to be here until the two met in the lounge, and he could not understand what it was all about. He was neglecting Puss whom Eve had placed next to him, and Puss seemed out of her depth and scared.

Nevertheless the dinner was gay though a great deal more formal than anything which ever had happened in the Lane. And at the end when Herman and the young German who was helping him to-night had gone about with their napkin-wrapped bottles, filling all the glasses with a flourish, a hush of expectancy settled upon the party. It was as if someone had cried: "Now! This is the high moment—now!"

Wade arose ponderously, looked up and down the table, his eyes twinkled. He made a graceful speech; paid a high tribute to literature, to art, to the modern realistic school of writing. He spoke of the outstanding success of the season, proudly offered the reading public by Wade's Weekly—the "Revelations of An Artist's Wife."

"The time has come," he stated. "When the author of this excellent portrayal must be led to take the acclaim which belongs to her. I say 'led' because she has been reluctant to disclose her identity; indeed her story was published with the understanding that it remain anonymous. Still she has yielded to our entreaties and finally consented to bring known."

He paused, twinkling about the crowd. Everyone stared at Puss who shrank in her chair, white and strained a craned little figure.

"For goodness' sake, Ken, don't keep looking at me that way! If you've got anything on your mind let's have it but do stop acting as if I were something out of a zoo."

He muttered "Sorry," and glanced away. And presently he asked, "You think it's the truth, what you wrote?"

"Isn't it?" she inquired sweetly. "Good lord!"

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Slouchy Bodily Postures

Result in Many Ills in Later Life

Says Dr. Copeland

Carry Your Body Straight, Give the Vital Organs a Chance to Function Naturally, Urges Authority. Good Carriage Means Health and Gives You Self-Respect.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is a good thing that physical education is now so popular. I am glad it is being given more prominence in the schools. Its methods of publicity bring it before the public mind.

Good posture of the body makes for good health. If you don't have good posture, your mistakes are not corrected early, you are in danger of many ills of the body later on in life.

You may look over a group of persons assembled anywhere, in the street or any public place, and you will be astonished to find how few have good posture of the body. How many do you see who have the splendid upright carriage?

The time to teach posture is in early childhood. A child is easily taught to stand straight. Every child should be trained so that he will have a straight back and a well-poised head.

At school your child may have some daily exercises in gymnastics to teach him bodily exercise and body posture. But if you do not encourage him at home to practice the things he learns at school, the chances are he will forget to apply them. What becomes habit with him now will probably last him as a habit through life.

Years of round shoulders, a bent back and slouchy bodily posture bring with them weak muscles of the stomach and intestines. Indigestion and worse things are bound to follow. The lungs are restricted and cannot do their full duty.

What is the correct posture? A correct standing attitude enables you to carry a book or other load on top of the head with perfect ease. The back is straight, the head is straight, the abdomen is kept in, the head is erect and chin in.

Look at the outstanding men and women in the world. You will find scarcely one who isn't possessed of good posture and an alert, active body and mind. It is the man and

THE KING'S CANARY SPEAKS

John Masefield, England's new "King's Canary" as the British call him, says he is writing a new book which is mostly prose, but interspersed with poetry. That is after the manner of some of Kipling's later work. He expects to sing more or less in his new job, but doesn't seem to take it so seriously as most of his predecessors. His book is a romance of the sea, based on the history of a famous old sailing ship. And speaking of that sort of literature, he observes:

"Romantic stories are necessary in our days. The new generation of writers is inevitably under the influence of our times. Our generation is seeing the most wonderful inventions in the history of mankind. The radio, airplanes and motor cars naturally are influencing young people, who lead a much speedier life than we did 30 years ago. They have no time to read long books in which the characters and psychology of the heroes are closely analyzed.

"Everything goes faster nowadays, and naturally the influence of the mechanical age is felt by young authors. But this will wear out, because basically human nature does not change much."

Yes, we'll tire of action and turn contemplative again, no doubt. But there isn't much sign of that yet.

CITY VACATIONS

The Board of Trade has decided to advertise New York City widely as a summer resort. The emphasis will no doubt be placed on pleasant sea beaches, boating facilities, fine theatres, museums and parks, with no mention of hot pavements, crowded subways and noise.

Other cities, particularly those with bathing beaches, fine parks and boulevards, have been showing a live interest in attracting summer tourists. It really isn't such a laughable procedure, either. There should be all sorts of vacations to suit all sorts of people and all sorts of recreational needs. For many persons, kept pretty close to routine work during the rest of the year and with little opportunity for travel, a trip to a new and strange city would be a stimulating and thrilling adventure, even without the outdoor features. Many a mother would find two weeks in a big city hotel, with plenty of service and free time for sightseeing a pleasant experience. And there would still be the farms and ranches and mountains and north woods for those other vacationers who need closer contact with nature for their physical and spiritual refreshment.

FRENCH TOURIST BUSINESS

"Tourism," as the French quaintly call it, intrigues us more and more. France is making a business of it. The government itself has gone into the game, with a High Commissioner of Tourism in charge. And it certainly seems to offer a bargain to the foreign tourist, especially from America. For $100 the traveler is given an inclusive ticket entitling him to a 15 days vacation. It covers transportation all over France by railroad and motor bus, with three meals a day, including wine. This latter feature is expected to appeal to thirsty Americans. But wet or dry, it's all the same to the French. There is no rebate if the tourist abstains from the wine. He is permitted, however, as a special favor, to drink mineral water if he prefers. Nothing could show more clearly the extent to which vacation touring is becoming an industry in many lands. Last year France lost 25 percent of her tourist business. The present plan is counted on to win it back, attracting at least 100,000 more tourists and adding many millions to her revenue.

Viewed internationally, this touring to ask what's wrong, whether as the United States is concerned. We do nearly all the going and spending. But our turn will come some day. We shall have a Secretary of Touring in the President's cabinet, with profitable visitors coming by the hundred thousand.

SAVE BASEBALL!

Mass production in hits and runs is threatening the national game of baseball. The public is beginning to ask what's wrong, whether the pitchers aren't so good as formerly or whether the ball is too lively. The game is suffering from other troubles. Robert Littell in the New York World, says:

"You can't stage a poker game in a stadium. And half of any ball is as crafty and subtle as poker. But American spectators seem to like their sports, as well as their movies, laid on with a trowel. And in a modern, three tiered, steel-and-concrete ball park, where so

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXXVIII

It took her only a few minutes to drive home, and there she looked into the bedroom upon Ken slumbering peacefully in his bed.

"All my excitement for nothing," she told herself. "Maybe I'll learn some day. But it was worth everything I guess—worth what I know now. What I'm going to do."

For her plan was complete; she had made up her mind about Puss. Everything was clear when she awakened at Stonywall.

Of course it might fail just as the cheap little trick which wearied Ken of Piff might have failed. But she did not believe this. She believed that down in his heart, Ken loved her as much as he had loved her on their wedding day.

Anyway she must go through with this, take the chance for the sake of what it might bring. In the afternoon she went to see Nory, told him what she wished to have done. And if he suspected the reason he gave no sign.

"I'll see Wade right away, dryad. He'll be delighted with the publicity—you thought of that, didn't you? Shouldn't wonder if this would put you over as a writer. If that's what you want to be."

"I don't, Nory. That is, I didn't. Now—well, I don't know—"

His eyes dreamed at her and she looked away. Sometimes she fancied there was more than friendship in Nory's eyes when they rested on her.

Within the week Eve had invited the tribe to a dinner party at the Pen and Brush Club. Engraved invitations, this time, and word passed around that it would be formal. Yet not even Ken was able to find out more than this.

"Better send your clothes to be pressed and buy a new tie, dear. You've only got one and it's a stink."

"But gosh, Eve, why the con-somme and herring? You're getting dam' high hat and mysterious, seems to me."

"The mystery will be cleared all right. I phoned Puss and she expects you to fetch her. . . And I've got a new gown coming from La Fleur's."

And then it was the night of the party. Nory called for Eve looking very tall, very whimsical in his black and white. He brought a knot of white orchids which she pinned to the girdle of the La Fleur creation, an artfully artless sheath of palest green which put golden lights into her soft ruff of hair and turned her eyes topaz.

"How thoughtful of you, Nory. Exquisite flowers—"

"Like you, Eve, little thoroughbred. . . Wade is driving up; said he wouldn't miss tonight for a moment."

Many of the spectators are 400 or 500 feet away from the scene of action, nothing that is not laid on with a trowel would be visible."

So such beautiful sights as "a running catch in deep centre, a neatly placed punt down the third base line, a perfect steal of second base, a lightning, flawless double-play" have to give way to spectacular home runs which even the people on the tenement house roofs can see and yell their heads off about.

This may not be so grave a matter as some other national problems, but it is having its bad influence on American life and recreation. Something must be done!

She frowned thoughtfully. "It doesn't want Ken embarrassed, Nory."

"Ken isn't fragile, my dear. Matter of fact, I think Wade would like to see the young man's bumptiousness jolted. Anyway he gave the story to the afternoon papers; it'll be on the street by now. And a couple of news writers—man from the Planet and a woman from the Star—are coming up on Wade's invitation. Better have your story ready. Ho, hum—looks like the start of a big night."

"Not too big, I hope," she murmured. "They get out of hand—all sorts of things—when they're too big—"

The Pen and Brush Club had been transformed from a rather bare, rather shabby old building to a place of enchantment, banked with flowers and softly lighted. The table had been laid in the ball room and the tribe, all carefully garbed and groomed for the occasion, gathered about looking a little uncertain and watchful. Only Barton Wade at Eve's right and Nory at her left and the two reporters, were wholly at ease. Even Ken, beyond actors and peonies at the foot of the table returned Eve's smile doubtfully. He had not known that Wade was to be here until the two met in the lounge, and he could not understand what it was all about. He was neglecting Puss whom Eve had placed next to him, and Puss seemed out of her depth and scared.

Nevertheless the dinner was gay though a great deal more formal than anything which ever had happened in The Lane. And at the end when Herman and the young German who was helping him to-night had gone about with their napkin-wrapped bottles, filling all the glasses with a flourish, a hush of expectancy settled upon the party. It was as if someone had cried "Now! This is the high moment—now!"

Wade arose ponderously, looked up and down the table, his eyes a-tinkle. He made a graceful speech; paid a high tribute to literature, to art, to the modern realistic school of writing. He spoke of the outstanding success of the season, proudly offered the reading public by Wade's Weekly—the "Revelations Of An Artist's Wife."

"The time has come," he stated, "when the author of this excellent portrayal must be led to take the acclaim which belongs to her. I say 'led' because she has been reluctant to disclose her identity; indeed her story was published with the understanding that it remain anonymous. Still she has yielded to our entreaties and finally consented to being known."

He passed, twinkling about the crowd. Everyone glanced at Puss who shrank in her chair, white and strained, a craven little figure.

He had nothing to say of what had happened until finally over the dinner table Eve no longer could stand his staring.

"For goodness' sake, Ken, don't keep looking at me that way! If you've got anything on your mind let's have it but do stop acting as if I were something out of a zoo."

He muttered "Sorry," and glanced away. And presently he asked, "You think it's the truth, what you wrote?"

"Isn't it?" she inquired sweetly. "Good lord!"

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

William M. Reid won a spelling bee held at Stewart's Hall in Ashville Thursday evening.

"It gives me great pleasure," said Mr. Barton Wade, raising his glass, "to propose a toast to a brilliant young woman, a new star on the literary horizon. Ladies, gentlemen—to Evelyn Reade Wilmer!"

Silence—a gasp—the clatter of people getting to their feet—applause that made the walls ring. Everybody staring—they couldn't believe their ears—or their eyes! Ken's wife! Little, mousy Eve!

They drank their wine, took up a cry: "Speech! Speech!" Wade turned to Eve, laughing. Nory whispered, "Steady—attagirl—"

Next day the papers spoke of the charming poise with which she had received the plaudits of her friends; they hinted, too, that Eve Wilmer's husband, the artist, was in on the secret from the first. How else account for the way she ended her little speech of thanks?

"I should like to propose an other toast if all of you don't mind. To my dearest pal and severest critic—the artist himself!"

The newspaper stories got quite sentimental after this when it touched upon the romantic married life of the young author and her husband, the artist. The romance, it pointed out, was clear to all when Wilmer replied to his wife's toast with another, "To marriage!"

But of course the newspaper, had nothing to say about the things which most interested Eve, about the new respect in Elmal manner; about Piff's catty little remark, "Oh, Wade's—never read it!" or about Puss, drooping and forgotten trying frantically to win Ken's attention and being completely ignored.

Eve asked Nory to take Puss home finally and sent Ken for her own wrap. He never took his eyes from her; he seemed in a sort of daze, stricken dumb with amazement.

He still was dazed, very formal, next day. He drove to Haverford brought all the newspapers home, handed them to his wife. And now once again Eve saw her name on front pages and her photograph as well, but this time she was the one the stories were about and Ken was mentioned merely as her husband.

He had nothing to say of what had happened until finally over the dinner table Eve no longer could stand his staring.

"For goodness' sake, Ken, don't keep looking at me that way! If you've got anything on your mind let's have it but do stop acting as if I were something out of a zoo."

He muttered "Sorry," and glanced away. And presently he asked, "You think it's the truth, what you wrote?"

"Isn't it?" she inquired sweetly. "Good lord!"

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

Slouchy Bodily Postures

Result in Many Ills in Later Life

Says Dr. Copeland

Carry Your Body Straight, Give the Vital Organs a Chance to Function Naturally, Urges Authority. Good Carriage Means Health and Gives You Self-Respect.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is a good thing that physical education is now so popular. I am glad it is being given more prominence in the schools. Its methods of publicity bring it before the public mind.

Good posture of the body makes for good health. If you don't have good posture, and your mistakes are not corrected early, you are in danger of many ills of the body later on in life.

You may look over a group of persons assembled anywhere, in the street or any public place, and you will be astonished to find how few have good posture of the body. How many do you see who have the splendid upright carriage?

The time to teach posture is in early childhood. A child is easily taught to stand straight. Every child should be trained so that he will have a straight back and a well-poised head.

At school your child may have some daily exercises in gymnastics to teach him bodily exercise and body poise. But if you do not encourage him at home to practice the things he learns at school the chances are he will forget to apply them. What becomes habit with him now will probably last him as a habit through life.

Years of round shoulders, a bent back and slouchy bodily posture bring with them weak muscles of the stomach and intestines. Indigestion and worse things are bound to follow. The lungs are restricted and cannot do their full duty.

What is the correct posture? A correct standing attitude enables you to carry a book or other load on top of the head with perfect ease. The back is straight, legs are straight, the abdomen is kept in, the head is erect and chin in.

Look at the outstanding men and women in the world. You will find scarcely one who is not possessed of good posture and an alert, active body and mind. It is the man and woman thus endowed who most easily make good in the business and professional world. The young man with a good carriage, well-poised and pleasing in personality has a distinct advantage over others in the line of applicants for the business position. Good posture gives you self-respect.

Sometimes, of course, poor posture is due to poor health. We live in a hothouse atmosphere for the most part, and too many of us get far too little exercise. Right living brings better health. Proper exercise out-of-doors builds for bodily resistance to disease. Good posture does more for you than it would seem possible.

Sitting in the right posture—that is, bolt upright—keeps stomach and bowels in the right place, and the weight of the stomach helps the automatic movement of the bowels. With it comes free elimination of the intestines.

You can breathe deeply with the right posture. Deep breathing from the lungs is good for the physical vigor and for the lungs. It leads to purification of the blood and to its increased flow. It reacts on the stomach and bowels, stimulating the work they have to do.

Isn't it worth while to practice good posture in sitting and standing? Is it not wonderful that you have the privilege of teaching your children that good posture is a necessity for good health? You are giving them something worth more than wealth.

KONJOLA WON WHEN ALL ELSE TRIED FAILED

Grateful Man, 63, Relieved of Stubborn and Complicated Ailments By Modern Medicine.

MR. PATRICK F. JOYCE.
"I suffered for many years with stomach and liver ailments," said Mr. Patrick F. Joyce, 410 Cincinnati street, Toledo. "I never ate a meal without gas forming, and the pains in my stomach were so frightful that I dreaded meal time. My liver became disordered and frequent bilious attacks made life miserable. I had racking headaches for days at a time. My general health was so weak and run-down that I feared I would never be well again.
"I was desperate when I turned to Konjola for relief. This splendid medicine brought improvement right from the beginning. In all I took six bottles, and it is hard for me to realize, even now, what Konjola has done for me. I eat heartily of my favorite foods and never bloat after meals. My general health has not been as good in many years as it is today."
When taken for six to eight weeks Konjola will work wonders that will astonish those who suffer from the stubborn ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.
Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Makes Ice Despite Great Heat

INTENSE interest has been aroused by the heat test being shown in Frigidaire display windows throughout the United States, where subjected to temperatures of 120 degrees, this electric refrigerator freezes ice cubes. This unusual demonstration followed engineering research to determine the maximum temperature under which this could be accomplished. With sides of the cabinet subjected to a radiant heat temperature of 180 degrees tests showed ice could be frozen.

It begins to look as if the economic powers will hold an international conference sooner or later on tariff limitation.

Now dawn the glad season when nature-lovers drive out into the country and destroy all the nature they can get their hands on.

STEEP INCLINE DEATH CAUSE

CINCINNATI, O., May 21 — Hamilton county's sixty-eighth automobile fatality in 1930 went on record Tuesday with the death of David Linn, aged 75, as the result of injuries which he sustained Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding plunged over a 70-foot embankment here.

When notified of the death of Linn, Coroner Fred C. Swing bitterly criticized city officials because of the steep hill.
"That hill is a menace," he said, "This is the third death on the hill and something must be done to lessen the danger there."
"There is an automobile accident along the steep hill almost every day and over one Sunday and Monday morning, 14 automobiles were wrecked there."
Coroner Swing placed the blame on the slippery brick pavement with which the hill is paved.

The joys of auto travel need not be denied anyone. Look at these cars! Just partially used, plenty of miles to spare—and plenty of economy.

- 1929 Chevrolet Sport Touring Car. Only 5,000 miles on this one.

The complete facts regarding Buick service, including Buick's new Owner Touring and Change of Residence privileges, may now be had in a brief, compact booklet, "Buick Owner Service Policy."

Buick would like everyone who owns—or expects to own—a Buick car to be thoroughly acquainted with the liberal provisions of this Policy.

You may obtain a copy of this interesting booklet from the nearest Buick dealer, or by writing direct to Buick Motor Company, Flint, Michigan.

"Satisfy the customer." This has been the service policy of the Buick Motor Company throughout the twenty-seven years of its history. And so faithfully has Buick followed this policy that today the familiar emblem of Authorized Buick Service means prompt, efficient and courteous maintenance to more than 1,500,000 Buick owners. Buick has twice as many owners as any other company selling cars priced above $1200.

Here are a few of the many important points of Buick's Service Policy:

More than 4,000 factory-supervised Service Stations assure all Buick owners the same fine standard of skilled Buick service. A written Warranty, covering the first 4,000 miles or the first 90 days of ownership, whichever shall accrue first, guarantees every new Buick car to be free from defects in material or workmanship.

Should parts or workmanship prove defective at any time during the Warranty period, Buick dealers will supply the parts and perform the necessary labor free of charge.

In addition to careful pre-delivery tests, the Buick owner receives two major inspections without cost—one after 500 miles and another after 1500 miles of driving. These include a thorough road test of all elements of performance.

The "Tourist" and "Change of Residence" clauses permit the Buick owner to change his residence as frequently as he desires or to tour any part of the U. S. or Canada and still receive the full Warranty benefits from the nearest authorized Buick dealer.

ALL BUICK dealers fulfill these provisions of BUICK'S service policy. All dedicate themselves to the task of serving promptly, efficiently and courteously.

The honest reason

THERE IS ONLY one real reason for smoking and that's pleasure. A pretty good reason after all. The cigarette you select in the long run will be the one that can contribute most to your enjoyment.

Camels are made with that idea in mind—the idea that genuine smoke pleasure is what you want in a cigarette.

When you try them you will find a refreshing difference—a mild, mellow richness of choice tobaccos—a blended harmony of fragrance, silky smooth—that makes smoking a delight.

The fact that more millions have chosen Camel than any other cigarette is a tribute to an honest product, marketed for an honest purpose.

WARD'S PETTIT-SINCLAIR'S PLAY 12 INNING DEADLOCK

Doggy Ward's rejuvenated recreation ball team and the Pettit-Sinclair's played 12 long innings at Mason's Tuesday evening with the result that Umpire-in-chief Bill Merriman called the game on account of darkness with a 4-4 tie existing.

The contest was one of the most exciting to be staged in recreation circles this year with each team failing when the chance of victory presented itself. From the time the Pettit-Sinclair's tied the count at 4-4 in the eighth inning until the contest was called in the twelfth frame each team had chances to score that fell just a little bit short.

The tire-gas men had the finest chance in their half of the eleventh frame when the sacks were loaded with no one out. But right then the veteran Red Owens, hurrying for the Ward's, tightened like a clam and retired the side with no further damage.

The first man rolled to Owens and a runner was forced at the plate. The second, popped a foul to catcher Freddie Watts. The third, out was scored on an easy fly to Finky Wilson in short left field.

The Wardmen had a chance in their half of the eleventh when a high right field failed to score Owens from second base. Two were out with runners on third and second when Frank Davis lined a hard drive into the hands of the Pettit-Sinclair short-fielder to end the scoring chance.

Neither team threatened in the twelfth and the game was called.

It has not been decided when the game will be played off.

CHILDREN OF MRS. BUTORAC

BROOKLYN, ST. LOUIS BATTLE NECK-TO-NECK IN OLD LOOP

NEW YORK, May, 21.—The fighting spirit to carry on when all seems lost that makes baseball America's greatest sport flung a lot of its inspiring pennants today with those two battling, slugging clubs, Brooklyn and St. Louis, running neck and neck in the throbbing National League race. Both teams got away to bad starts but in a month, clipped their way from cellar oblivion to become the two most talked of clubs in baseball.

Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop, whacked a homer with bases loaded as the Redbirds defeated Chicago 16 to 3 and the thrilling Robins trounced the Phillies 16 to 9. Babe Herman led the sock troops, getting four singles and a terrific homer.

A twirling fly by Sisler over second that dropped where no one was looking scored two runs in the tenth for Boston and the Braves triumphed 4 to 3 sending cue erefe Giants into berth No. 4.

French, the Pirates' portside pitcher, held the Reds to four hits as the Bucs won 5 to 0 and went into third place.

Cleveland grabbed a double victory, 7 to 3 and 7 to 5 from the White Sox. Mel Harder was pitching thoughtfully in the first game and in the windup, Morgan, Indian outfielder, homered with two on in the sixth.

Babe Ruth was a flop but Lazzeri and Gehrig each bingle-banged thrice and won, 7 to 4, for the Yankees over Boston in ten innings.

The St. Louis Brownies lowered the Detroit Tigers into the cellar again by winning the series final 8 to 2. St. Louis drove Hogsett to the coolers in the seventh when they scored five runs.

The Senators and Athletics were idle.

TRIPLE TIE IN A. A. LOOP

Indianapolis Futs. Defeat On Senators, 4 to 3—Toledo Also Loses.

A three cornered tie for third place exists in the American Association pennant race, and besides promising more lively times along the baseball front, it is also indicative of the brand of hang-up baseball which is being played by the eight teams in the circuit this season.

Two games resulted in the jumble. Columbus and Toledo each dropped a game, while Indianapolis garnered one, making the season average for all three outfits read: won 14, lost 11.

The Indians took their upward stride at the expense of the Columbus Senators, whom they outplayed, 4 to 3.

The Toledo Mud Hens failed miserably in their attack upon the first-place Louisville Colonels. The score at the end of nine innings of what can hardly be called baseball on the Mud Hens' part stood 15 to 1. The Colonels took every offering of the Mud Hens' pitchers, until at the end of the fifth frame it became only a matter of how many runs the home guard might take, and not a matter of winning or losing a ball game.

St. Paul strengthened its prestige in second place when it handed Milwaukee a defeat, 6 to 0.

TWO HOME RUNS AID GORDON TIRES DEFEAT BROTHERHOOD

Two home runs, five two-base fast and furious entanglement between the Lutheran Brotherhood and Gordon Tires which was won by the tiremen at the Utilities field. The score was 6 to 4.

This loss means that the churchmen continue in the cellar, while the Gordon boys are behind the Cokes in second place.

The old ball started rolling in the third inning for the churchmen when, through errors on the part of the Gordon infield, four men stepped across the rubber.

However, the tiremen stepped right up to that plate and swatted two home runs, and with two other long hits four men swept over the plate.

Bob Pickens and Dick Robinson are responsible for the home runs, both of which were hard drives down the third base line. These are the second and third home runs scored this season, as Dutch Weller of the Cokes did the same thing Monday evening.

The game was quiet for awhile until the sixth inning, when the Gordons once more brought two more runners safely around the bases.

After this the tightest of tight recreation ball was played by both teams and as a result the tire-men came out on the long end with a 6 to 4 score.

Roy Dunn was on the mound for the Lutherans and pitched some mighty good ball, as also did

YOUTH KILLED IN COLLISION

—One youth was killed and another was seriously injured early Tuesday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a stationary freight train on a West Huntington crossing.

The impact of the crash derailed a box-car.

Trainmen declared that they made frantic efforts to flag the youths' automobile to a halt, but that the young men did not heed their signals.

Police, who investigated, declared that they found a bottle of alleged "moonshine" in the wrecked machine.

G. W. Navier, aged 21, is the dead youth. Ralph Moore, 19, his companion, was seriously hurt. Both reside in Kenova, W. Va.

Maybe "setup" and "mopup" and "runin" and similar favorites of the sporting page are good words, but some people are old-fashioned enough to believe that there is still some merit in the hyphen.

Another good thing about airplanes is the way they make people look up, and promote exercise.

Yes, the war's over. A German visitor calls the United States Senate "provincial" and gets away without being investigated.
